Crime expert backs united Western front against gangs

JEFF CUMMINGS
jeff.cummings@metronews.ca

A local crime expert applauds a group of western Canadian justice officials who are ganging up on organized crime, in hopes of rewriting dusty pages of the criminal code.

Public safety officials from British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba met Saturday, and agreed they're handicapped by archaic rules for wiretaps, time-served credit and bail decisions.

"Our laws are so outdated, organized criminals laugh at them," Grant MacEwan criminologist Bill Pitt told Metro yesterday. "We're going to wake up one day down the line, and everything we know is going to be corrupted by organized crime."

Removing two-for-one credit with respect to time served in remand tops the list of priorities.

"It's an absolute abomination," Pitt said. "People are riding out their time in there. Let's have a little bit of truth in sentencing."

A major concern for officials is that wiretap laws have not been updated since 1974, and that outdated regulation can hinder the process of approval by months.

United front efforts were assembled to inspire federal fast-tracking, according to Alberta Justice Minister Alison Redford said.

"Organized crime is highly techno-wise," Pitt said. "We're catching up, but we better catch up in a hurry."

Alberta water 'priceless'

Province urged to make water consumption a human right

jeff.cummings@metronews.ca

Alberta's government needs to make a splash in mixing water consumption with human rights, urged a small group of sign-carrying protesters who marched to the front steps of the legislature yesterday.

Twenty people marched through blowing snow yelling, "water is a right, not for oil" as they crossed the North Saskatchewan River through the High Level Bridge on the UN-designated International World Water Day.

"We cannot continue to use water the way we are using it now," said Edmonton-Strathcona NDP MLA Rachel Notley, who participated in the rally.

"We have to do better in the way we are managing our water resources."

The activists unveiled a declaration urging the province to make water consumption a human right since they believe Alberta's water is "public, protected and priceless."

The group will also begin collecting signatures for a petition, which they plan to introduce to the government this month. "We have to make a turnaround with how we use our water," said Angela Vardy of national activist group the Council of Canadians. "We need to put pressure on this government."

Notley says Alberta is at "ground zero" when it comes to water issues, especially after oilsands giant Suncor was slapped with 90 charges over dumping poorly treated sewage water into the Athabasca River last year.

The company and three of its contractors are also accused of providing misleading and false information to the province for two years at Suncor's work camp near Fort McMurray.

Cases like this call for more government controls and systems in place to monitor industrial water consumption, said Notley, instead of making Alberta's industrial sector monitor themselves.

"We have asked the government a lot about (making water consumption) a human rights issue for a long time, and we will keep pushing," said Notley, adding Alberta is in danger of losing its precious resource.

Home show slowdown

MARISSA MIDDLETON

Thoughts of the recession weighed on the minds of some of the Edmontonians visiting the Home and Garden Show at Northlands AgriCom yesterday.

The event aims to provide people with inspiration, advice and assistance for all their home and garden projects.

It featured more than 500 vendors and exhibits showcasing the best and newest home and garden products, ranging from flooring and countertops to outdoor fountains and lawn tractors.

Show manager Terri Higgins believes attendance numbers for this year's event are on par with previous years, but won't know for sure until later in the week.

"You just want to be more cautious about how you're going to spend your money," she said. "It's much more shopping around and doing my homework to find out what I want to do."

Some vendors at the show, including a John Deere lawn-tractor dealer, noticed that people aren't in a hurry to make purchases this year.

"They're thinking about it more," said Glen Possberg, a sales representative for Martin Equipment LTD. "When times are better, they make quicker decisions."

Firefighters investigating two city blazes

JEFF CUMMINGS

DAMAGE An abandoned home in the city's west end burned to the ground early yesterday morning and fire investigators are trying to determine what sparked the blaze.

Firefighters were called to the unoccupied home at 101 Street and 140 Avenue shortly after 5:30 a.m.

Flames were seen shooting out of the two-storey home before firefighters were able to contain the blaze sometime around 9 a.m. No tally has been made on the damages.

Firefighters, meanwhile, were also busy dealing with a vehicle that was found ablaze near 45 Street and 26 Avenue yesterday morning.

Fire investigators say the blaze may have been purposely set and damages have been pegged at $25,000.

Ignatieff courts Quebecers for Liberal votes

POLITICS With a mountain of work ahead to ready his bruised party for the next election, Liberal Leader Michael Ignatieff is determined to steal the mantle from the Conservatives as the federalist alternative in Quebec.

The party is still sorely challenged organizationally, a fact Ignatieff himself acknowledges while assuring his supporters that action to fix its electoral machine is underway — including getting advice from U.S. President Barack Obama's team on how to update the party's donor database. New candidates with star quality in the province are still missing in action, despite Ignatieff's months on the job.

But the 500 partisans who filled the Laval Sheraton Hotel convention centre for the Quebec wing's general council meeting yesterday were greeted with a pointed message.

Video stores thrive

Vendors of at-home pursuits make cash despite downturn

Riding the Recession

Uncertain economic times have had a negative impact on just about everyone — except those who benefit from you staying at home.

Rogers Plus video stores haven't missed a beat with a declining economy.

"Despite the recession, business has been steady in comparison to the last year," said Harold Simons, manager of communications at Rogers Plus.

"We really have not been impacted yet because movies and video games are a great way to entertain yourself at home."

That success even translates to alternative video stores, such as Excitement video in Halifax. The adult film store has also seen an up-tick in sales and rentals since the economy slid late last year.

"Sex just doesn't go away in a recession," said store manager Lindsay Allain. "You don't necessarily need a car. You can do away with that. But you're always going to need sex."

Those looking to brush up on culinary skills at home are helping prop up the bottom line of national grocery chains.

"Things are fairly stable in our business," said Michael Lupien of Sobeys. "We're not laying people off. We are seeing an increase in sales in a lot of our prepared meals. People want value for their dollar, which means that they are cooking at home."

And what's unfortunate to some is a boon for others, as pawn shops are also seeing more people come in to sell high-end goods for a quick cash injection.

"We've seen about double the number of items come in due to the recession," said Mandy Motyer, a senior supervisor at Cash Canada Pawn Shop in Calgary. "A lot of people are coming in and telling us that they just lost their job and are looking to make some money somehow."

California gunman kills 3 police officers

Interim Oakland police Chief Howard Jordan speaks during a press conference announcing the shooting deaths of three Oakland, Calif., police officers on Saturday.

A man in Oakland, Calif., killed three police officers and wounded two others Saturday in two separate shootings that began with a traffic stop and ended with a gun battle, police said.

Lovelle Mixon, 26, was pulled over during a traffic stop in the early afternoon.

Mixon, who was wanted for violating parole on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, opened fire on two officers, one of whom later died, and fled.

Officers found the suspect later that afternoon in an apartment.

When a Special Weapons and Tactics team forced their way in, he opened fire with an assault rifle, hitting three officers, two of whom died from the wounds, according to a statement by police in the San Francisco Bay area.

Mixon was killed in the gun fight, and the officer wounded in the traffic stop is in critical condition.

"I wouldn't wish this on any of my colleagues in the United States," acting police Chief Howard Jordan told a news conference Saturday.

"This is very daunting for us, but we are very resilient. We are a big family and we rely on each other for support."

Since Oakland's police department was formed in 1867, 50 of its officers have died in the line of duty.

Plane crash leaves 17 dead in Montana

ROCKIES A single-engine plane, reported to be carrying children on a ski vacation to the Rocky Mountains, crashed on approach to an airport in western Montana yesterday, killing 17 people, the Federal Aviation Administration said.

A photograph taken by an eyewitness moments after the crash and broadcast on CNN showed a fireball blazing through a grove of trees near a cemetery a short distance from the Bert Mooney Airport in Butte, Mont., where the plane went down.

A reporter from the Montana Standard newspaper cited local emergency officials as saying the plane was carrying a group of young children en route to a ski vacation in Bozeman, Mont., southeast of the crash site and about 50 miles north of Yellowstone National Park.

The plane

- The plane was a single-engine turboprop Pilatus PC12.
- It crashed about 500 feet from the airport while attempting to land and burst into flames.

FAA spokesman Mike Fergus put the preliminary death toll from the crash at 17 people. He said there was no indication of any survivors on the plane, nor of casualties on the ground.

Fergus said authorities on the scene had reported to the FAA that a number of children were on the plane.

A Los Angeles-based FAA official said the plane had taken off from the northern California town of Oroville and crashed on final approach at the airport in Butte.

Resistance to bailout grows

OBAMA A public furor over big bonuses paid by firms bailed out with U.S. taxpayer money is fuelling resistance to President Barack Obama's ambitious plans to extend government intervention in the U.S. private sector.

Republican opponents say his commitment of huge sums to try to revive the ailing economy is driven by a philosophical belief in greater government intrusion in many areas, dubbing it socialism.

As the enormous cost of Obama's effort to stimulate the economy grows, many are weighing just how far government should be extending its powers.

Now entering the blogosphere

HineSight

Anne Hines

metronews.ca/hinesight

This morning I'm reflecting on what makes a life interesting.

There's a reason for this. Recently, Dianne Rinehart, my editor-in-chief at Metro, asked if I'd write a blog to go with my column.

Now when an editor-in-chief asks, "Would you like to ...?" I snap to and say, "How high?" Usually leading them to ask, "What do you mean? What's that got to do with filing your column on time?" And then I say, "Um ... it's like you asked me to jump and I ...". And they say, "I knew hiring a humour writer was trouble. I wonder if that woman who writes about telling your fortune by reading bird droppings is still available." Something like that.

Anyway, this week I begin to blog. I'm willing to blog. I'm wanting to blog. I'm waiting to blog. The only thing keeping me from blogging is having no idea what the heck to blog about.

Not being a huge blog reader myself, I asked blog-savvy friends what one blogs about. Apparently, blogging is a chance to share all those ordinary everyday thoughts and experiences that no one will sit and listen to us talk about, but are happy to spend hours reading online.

One friend suggested, "Anything can be interesting. What did you do this morning?"

Me: I spent 45 minutes trying to unglue teeth whitening strips from the paper backing, ending up having to pull 50 half unstuck strips out of my bangs. Is that a blog?

Her: That's a Twitter. You have to work up to that.

Another friend said, "Blog about how you're different. That's what's interesting."

Well, I'm a divorced, remarried lesbian living in a straight neighbourhood. One of my daughters is transsexual. I'm training to become a minister in a faith that traditionally would like to see my sort tarred and feathered.

But frankly, in my world, this is all old news.

And is it our differences that make our lives interesting? The most interesting thing my life experience has taught me is that we're really all the same. We all want to be loved. We all need hope. We all hope to be listened to.

I don't know if that's a blog or a Twitter. I do believe it's the truth.

Anne Hines is an author and humour writer. She has written three novels and one collection of nonfiction humour.

Top 10 ways to amuse yourself on ETS

InTransit

Brendan Van Alstine

metronews.ca/vanalstine

I've been known to rant and rave about the inefficiencies of Edmonton Transit's routes, with their winding, circuitous and indirect nature, or how they sometimes sit and idle for ridiculous amounts of time at stops and transit centres.

But today I thought I would put a positive spin on things. So, without further ado, here are the top 10 ways to amuse yourself while winding your way around on ETS.

10. Read a book or newspaper.

9. Start a conversation with a stranger. Sure, sometimes the drivers and patrons can be surly and unpleasant, but my experience has been that the unpleasant ones are the exception to the rule, and you can find yourself in some very interesting conversations if you give it a try.

8. Catch up on work or homework.

7. My best friend once told me years ago that her secret guilty form of entertainment while on the bus was to sit at the very back and pass gas — she would then amuse herself by watching the faces of people sitting further forward as the odour wafted and giggle at their disgusted looks.

6. Read the vandalism on the bus. Seriously, what is it with kids these days and vandalizing buses with their Nexopia names?

5. Knit everyone on the bus a tuque — not only will you probably have enough time, but you'll have something warm to wear when you're freezing waiting for the next transfer.

4. Sit at the back of the bus and sing. I think it's a little odd idea myself, but a friend of mine insists it's a great way to entertain oneself — and a great idea if you like lots of personal space since the people around you might get up and move away. Just be careful not to annoy the driver and get yourself kicked off the bus.

3. If singing on the bus isn't your thing, you could always enjoy listening to your CD or MP3 player.

2. Sleep — just be careful not to miss your stop. You should also be careful not to cuddle next to the person next to you or drool all over them ... most people dislike that.

1. Write a column on the top 10 ways to entertain yourself while riding the bus.

It's more than just turning off lights

Canada and the rest of the world prepare for third annual Earth Hour

EarthTones

Sophia Dore & Andrew Laursen

metronews.ca/earthtones

Earth Hour 2009 is almost upon us. What will you be doing and, more importantly, why are you doing it?

On Saturday, March 28, between 8:30 and 9:30 p.m., we are asked to turn off all non-essential lights and other power-using devices for the third annual Earth Hour event.

Earth Hour started in 2007 in Sydney, Australia. By last year, other countries had jumped on the bandwagon including Canada, where more than 150 cities signed up to participate, which is one of the highest participation rates in the world. The Toronto skyline dimmed noticeably and hydro usage dropped 8.7 per cent. In Ottawa, they showed a four per cent decrease in hydro usage. In Halifax, the McDonald Bridge, city hall and Grand Parade Square all went dark.

This year, Earth Hour events are planned in many cities across Canada. These events include a free Earth Hour concert in Nathan Phillips Square in Toronto, a free concert and stargazing in Grand Parade square in Halifax with telescopes available for use and free beverages (bring your own reusable mug), and a free concert in Vancouver at Junofest. For more information about these and other events, go to www.earthhour.org.

This year, Canada looks poised to outdo its 2008 performance with more than 200 cities already signed up to participate. Canada currently ranks No. 1 in the world in terms of cities signed up for Earth Hour with 208 cities. We are followed by Greece (185) and Australia (172). Lights on other major landmarks will be dimmed as Canadians vote with their light switches to show that climate change is important to us.

Speaking of voting, we find it ironic that Canada has more cities than any other country signed up for Earth Hour, however, our government's policy on global warming is lukewarm at best. We have backpedalled on our ratification of the Kyoto Protocol and now with a new forward-thinking administration in the U.S. we face the prospect of trailing behind even that traditional digger-in of heels on climate change, the U.S. of A.

We need to decide if we are serious about combating climate change. Are we just participating in Earth Hour for the "cool" factor because it's endorsed by celebrities, we like free concerts and lighting candles is fun anyway? Or are we willing to put resources into sustainable energy generation and into helping existing industries cut their carbon outputs? Meeting our Kyoto obligations is not going to be painless. Are we willing to deal with the pain?

Most importantly, are we willing to tell Ottawa that in spite of all our economic woes, we still care about climate change and about the environment and that we will not accept them turning their backs on it.

Or will we just turn the lights back on at 9:30 on March 28 and go about our lives?

Sophia Dore is an environmental scientist with Conestoga-Rovers & Associates. Andrew Laursen is an assistant professor at Ryerson University; earthtones.metro@gmail.com.

Get the entire family involved in Earth Hour

In support of Earth Hour, WWF-Canada and Sears Canada, a national sponsor of Earth Hour, present the Family Guide to Earth Hour, a series of tips and ideas to show Canadian parents that global change begins at home.

Make a plan: Use Earth Hour to discuss what your family can do year-round to take action for the planet. For ideas, visit TheGoodLife.wwf.ca.

Plant the seed: Help your children plant an indoor spice garden. Not only is this a great way to produce homegrown herbs and add flavour to your meals, it also reduces food miles associated with buying food at a grocery store that may have been shipped from thousands of miles away.

Candle-lit games night: Get out the board games or play a game of flashlight tag. Get the family gathered for some old-fashioned quality time to remind your children that games can be played without a computer or TV screen.

Take a tour: Explore your neighbourhood and travel around the city using fun and smart means of transportation — walk, bike, skateboard, scooter, or take the bus and show your kids that travel can be fun and sometimes faster when you leave your car at home.

Smart shopping: Provide some hands-on education with a shopping trip that includes a list to start, so you stick to the purchases you need and let your children help find the smart alternatives like environmentally friendly cleaners, energy-saving light bulbs and recycled products — and don't forget to bring your reusable bag. WWF CANADA

Focus shifts to water

Resource waning due to climate change: Forum

If water is now the kind of precious commodity that oil became in the 20th century, should delivery of clean water be the same sort of powerful political force as the environmental movement in an age of climate change?

And, in another sense of green, is there money to be made in a time of water scarcity?

The answer to both questions, according to environmental activists watching a global forum on water, is yes.

The weeklong meeting in Istanbul, Turkey, ended yesterday on International World Water Day, an annual event that focuses attention on sustainable management of fresh water.

What was clear at this year's World Water Forum was the notion that clean water supplies are waning due to a warming world.

And according to the World Health Organization, there is a high return on investment in clean water projects: Every $1 spent on water and sanitation can bring economic benefits averaging between $7 and $12.

Backstrom continues dominance over Oil

NHL RESULT

Oilers 0 Wild 3

THE SKINNY: The Wild ran their winning streak against the Oilers on home ice to 10 straight games thanks to a pair of goals by Owen Nolan and a 31-save performance by Niklas Backstrom. The Oilers went 0-for-5 on the power play as they had a three-game winning streak end.

THE BIG PLAY: It was scoreless in the second period when Nolan got a handle on a loose puck in a scramble in Edmonton's goal crease on a power play. Nolan tapped it past Dwayne Roloson to put Minnesota up 1-0 at 14:26.

HE OWNS THEM: Backstrom has never lost to the Oilers at home. With this win, he upped his record to 10-0 with four shutouts against Edmonton at the Xcel Energy Center.

REDDOX OUT: Forward Liam Reddix sat this one out with a concussion after being blindsided by Ben Eager in Chicago Friday. Eager has been slapped with a three-game suspension by the NHL for the incident.

THE NEXT GAME: The Oilers host the Detroit Red Wings Tuesday. ROBIN BROWNLEE/ FOR METRO EDMONTON

Niklas Backstrom of the Wild makes a save against the Oilers yesterday. Backstrom improved his home record against Edmonton to 10-0.

Oil Kings coming home in a hole

Carson McMillan scored in overtime yesterday as the Calgary Hitmen edged the Edmonton Oil Kings 2-1.

McMillan tipped a Paul Postma point shot past Edmonton goalie Torrie Jung to ignite the crowd of 11,122 fans at the Pengrowth Saddledome.

"It's a great moment," McMillan said. "I've played almost 50 playoff games and only got a couple goals. It's obviously nice to chip in as much as I can."

With the win, the Hitmen took a 2-0 lead in the opening round Western Hockey League playoff series. Edmonton is slated to host the next three games of the series tonight, Wednesday and on Friday in necessary.

"Now it's time to go home and try to hold serve," said Edmonton coach Steve Pleau, who commended his goalie Torrie Jung for making 54 saves to keep the Oil Kings in the game.

"He gives us all our energy. He gives us all our belief in what we do. When you've got a guy like that, it's fun to be at the rink."

Shayne Neigum notched a power-play goal in the second to give Edmonton a 1-0 lead before Kris Foucault scored for Calgary at 15:42 of the third to force overtime.

Roly the MVP goalie

It's called Old Man Power. Hall-of-fame pitcher Nolan Ryan showed some in 1993 when he slapped around Robin Ventura. George Foreman did likewise in 1994 when he knocked out Michael Moorer to win the IBF and WBC heavyweight boxing titles. Dwayne Roloson is doing the same thing now with the Edmonton Oilers.

The 39-year-old goaltender has defied his birth certificate by backstopping the Oilers stretch drive charge to the playoffs.

A 5-4 shootout win in Chicago Friday was his 27th consecutive start, a stretch in which he'd fashioned a record of 13-8-6 with a 2.77 goals-against average.

Not as dramatic as when a 46-year-old Ryan pummeled Ventura after he charged the mound, or when a 45-year-old Foreman, behind on the cards of all three judges, KO'd Moorer in the 10th round, but just as impressive.

Deemed by many observers an over-priced back-up to Mathieu Garon when this season began, Roloson has been Edmonton's MVP, hands down, as the Oilers have clawed back into post-season contention.

"He's an absolute warrior," said coach Craig MacTavish, who made it 28 straight starts for Roloson by giving him the nod against the Minnesota Wild at the Xcel Energy Center yesterday.

With 55 games in the books, Roloson is about to become the oldest goaltender in NHL history to appear in 60-or-more games in a single season.

Roloson is already one of just six stoppers to play in 60 games past the age of 37, joining Curtis Joseph, Ed Belfour, Patrick Roy, Dominik Hasek and Tony Esposito when he appeared in 60 games for the Oilers in 2006-07.

Roloson

While Roloson isn't the best technical goaltender and isn't blessed with unbelievable reflexes or physical tools, he's as focused as a player can possibly be and he battles with everything he's got.

Put focus and fight together, and you've got a goaltender playing the best hockey of his career at an age when Father Time and history dictate that it shouldn't happen.

If I'm GM Steve Tambellini, it's a no-brainer to offer Roloson a new one-year contract when the season is done.

BUY ME SOME PEANUTS

As somebody who covered the Edmonton Trappers of the Pacific Coast League for six seasons, including two PCL championships, I've been to just two games since the Triple-A left town for the Northern League and, now, the Golden League.

A lot of that had to do with the user-unfriendly ownership of Dan Orlich, but I'll be back at Telus Field for opening day now that the Oilers have taken over. I have a feeling a lot of other people will be, too.

WHILE I'M AT IT

If the NHL wants to be taken seriously about eliminating head shots, then hits like the blindside, cheap shot that Chicago's Ben Eager delivered to Liam Reddox at the United Center Friday have to be answered with suspensions in the double digits, not three-game slaps on the wrist.

In a decade covering the Edmonton sports scene, Robin Brownlee has been the news-breaker and insightful voice for sports fans in Oil Country. edmontonletters@metronews.ca

Four Olympics and counting

OddJobs

Diane Peters

Architecture critics marvel at the look of the new Richmond Olympic Oval. But the speedskaters who whip around the corners and look up at the clock to check their time only care about one thing: The ice.

And that's the responsibility of Mark Messer. He's the chief plant manager and ice and facility specialist for the Olympic Oval in Calgary, and is helping out at the new B.C. venue too.

The 48-year-old helped design some of the technical aspects of the new facility and will monitor the ice during next year's Olympics. It'll be his fourth Olympics — he spent 40 days straight in Turin in 2006.

Originally from Saskatchewan, Messer grew up in Calgary a mechanically minded kid. He did an apprenticeship as a heavy-duty mechanic but was laid off from his job in 1982 when the construction market dried up.

He was hired by the Saddledome when it opened in 1983 and learned on the job how to make ice for the Calgary Flames. He went to the Olympic Oval when it opened in 1987 and learned about speedskating.

Over the years, he took courses on refrigeration and ice-making equipment. Five years ago, he got promoted into his current position.

"To be good at this job, you have to have an open mind, be creative and open to new things," says Messer. He's questioned some traditional ice-making techniques and his experiments have led to numerous new ways to make fast, clean, smooth ice for both speed skaters and hockey players (his facility has a long-track oval and two international size rinks for hockey and short track skating).

He's learned, for instance, that highly purified water works best for long track skating, while water with minerals and impurities left in it leads to better short track skating.

These days, his job entails monitoring the ice by looking at computer reports from under-the-ice sensors, by checking it personally and talking to skaters and coaches. He adjusts the humidity in the building and works with his ice maintenance staff to achieve a smooth, fast surface.

He drives a Zamboni himself at least a few times a week, more lately in Richmond as he's been training staff there.

While he's an expert on ovals and loves being around speedskaters who strive to be the best, he's intersection speed-violation enforcement

As of April 1, 2009, law enforcement agencies across Alberta may issue speed violation tickets using data from Intersection Safety Device Technology. Speeding tickets can be issued at all phases of the traffic signal. These devices will also continue to be used for red-light violations.

In 2007, 92 people were killed and 10,092 were injured in traffic collisions at intersections in Alberta. Many of these collisions involved speeding.

Intersection safety devices will be located at existing red-light camera locations. Future locations can also be established at signalized intersections that have a high number of collisions or high frequency of violations.

Making fun of the news seems like a no-brainer. You need material? All you got to do is open a newspaper or switch on the TV.

But according to comic Colin Mochrie, it can be tricky sometimes.

"I remember after 9-11, for a long time it was hard to come up with a funny angle on that particular news item," says Mochrie, who was a cast member on This Hour Has 22 Minutes from 2001 until 2003. "We eventually did by focusing on the hysteria that resulted afterward."

"It was an odd time. I remember doing an improv tour, and you'd do a Bush joke and immediately lose 50 per cent of the audience. They'd boo."

Mochrie will return to the faux anchor desk this week as a guest on CBC's The Hour, delivering The News, the talk show's nightly look at the world of entertainment.

Comic Sean Cullen kicks off the guest anchoring tonight, followed by Mochrie (Tuesday), Gilson Lubin (Wednesday), and Nikki Payne (Thursday).

"We just thought it would be fun," says The Hour host George Stroumbouloupoulos.

"One of the things we do on our show is make sure Canadian talent has a home. We only have two interview spots, so we thought — how can we get them on the show? Hey — let's get them to do the The

The Hour's George Stroumbouloupoulos with Colin Mochrie.

News. Do what I do."

Stroumbouloupoulos says his talk show, which combines interviews with headlines and commentary, can be funny. But don't go mistaking it for a comedy show.

"We can do observation, we can point out the obvious, we can make jokes, or provide a nuanced look at something. But we're not a comedy show. But in there, if the audience finds something funny, that's great."

The host says he likes to change things up on his show and looks forward to what the comics bring to the table.

"We have our writers,

"We just thought it would be fun."

The Hour's George Stroumbouloupoulos

but they'll bring whatever they bring. We'll work on it with them. But no one needs to tell Sean Cullen or Colin Mochrie what to do."

Mochrie can't see himself doing nightly commentary on a show like The Hour or The Daily Show with Jon Stewart.

"It's certainly a good way to get your point across," he says. "But it sounds like work to me. I'm lazy. I'd get on the computer to write and get distracted by solitaire."

The Hour airs Monday-Friday at 11 p.m. on CBC.

Honeymoon in Tehran

Author: Azadeh Moaveni
Publisher: Random House
Price: $30 (Hardcover)

In this intimate memoir, journalist Azadeh Moaveni presents two very different faces of Iran. On the surface, she sees the fundamentalism in the stern ascension of President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad. But through her reporting, she meets a host of characters representing a progressive Iran, that express views against the country's oft-stereotyped class divisions. In a country she only meant to work in, Moaveni finds love, marriage and a family before being presented with whether to stay in a varying Iran or leave to protect her loved ones.

Sex tapes and the other woman? Keira's recession tip

PEOPLE Chris Brown cheated on Rihanna with a model, femalefirst.co.uk alleges.

The 19-year-old singer was having a relationship with 27-year-old model Natasha Ellie, the website says.

It has been claimed Natasha sent the three-page text message — initially reported to be from someone who Chris "had a previous sexual relationship with" — which sparked Chris and Rihanna's argument.

A source said: "Rihanna has been having problems with this girl for a long time. Rihanna even reached out to Natasha, but she denied everything."

Natasha may even have been mentioned in the lyrics to Rihanna's song Emergency Room: "I was pickin' up your clothes in the closet/ I was bout' to throw your jeans in the washer/ 'Til I saw a piece of paper sayin' 'Tasha'/ I gotta say I found this a bit shockin'/ And some receipts here that say you went shoppin'/ You bought some Nike shoes/ But why you buyin' stockin'g's?/ Boy how could you lie to me?/ I thought you would die for me/ I'm not accepting another apology."

The model's representative has denied the model had a relationship with Chris, but confirmed the pair met in Miami two years ago.

Meanwhile, rumours are flying that Rihanna and Chris Brown made a sex tape, femalefirst.co.uk adds.

The pair are said to have filmed themselves engaging in a series of "kinky" acts.

A source told Star magazine: "Chris and Rihanna enjoy an aggressive love life that would shock many people. Rihanna loves dressing up — including as a dominatrix — and role playing. They both have kinky sides."

The source added: "Rihanna has no issues with her sexuality. She can be really out there. But she'd be mortified if her friends and family found this out."

"Rihanna isn't always the little goody-two-shoes everyone thinks she is, and Chris doesn't want or need another scandal."

SHOES Keira Knightley rents shoes to satisfy her footwear fetish, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

The global economic downturn has forced The Duchess star to cut down on the number of designer high heels she buys, so she has started borrowing shoes instead.

The 23-year-old actress said: "I think when I was very young and I suddenly started earning a bit of money and I could actually afford to buy shoes, I got very excited and bought a lot. I mean a lot!

"I haven't bought any in quite a while. Now I just rent them for the day. They give them to me for the day and I give them back in the evening, which is good."

Lindsay's career revival stalls

CAREER Seth Rogen is refusing to return Lindsay Lohan's calls.

The 22-year-old is keen to revive her acting career by working with the Knocked Up actor, but is finding it hard to get in touch with him, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

She told Nylon magazine: "We're trying to get Seth Rogen for this project, but Seth won't call us back. So call us back, Seth, if you're reading this!

"I'm talking to lots of people. One is Sean Penn — I spoke to him again the other day."

If she struggles to land any roles, Lindsay added that she may pursue modelling.

Madonna orders cellphone ban?

DATING Madonna has banned her boyfriend from answering his phone in front of her, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

The 50-year-old argued with lover Jesus Luz, 22, after he took a call while she was in the same room.

A source said: "She told him it was rude for him to take a phone call in front of her ... Madonna agreed to let him answer the mobile when she's around, but only in emergencies.

However, she doesn't follow her own rules: "If her phone rings and she wants to take the call, she'll do it. This is not a relationship of
